Inquest in McLaren Death

Coroner George Suiter of Marlborough Inquires Into Death of Margaret P. MacLaren at New Paltz—Testimony of Twelve Witnesses.

Before Coroner George Suiter of Marlborough an inquest was held Friday afternoon, at the court house, to inquire into the death of Margaret P. McLaren, wife of Walter McLaren of this city, who was killed in an automobile accident on the evening of April 8, when a Stewart truck driven by her husband collided with a telephone pole near New Paltz. At the time of the accident Mrs. McLaren was riding with her husband on his truck in the direction of Kingston. He conducts an express service through that section of the county and was returning home at the time of the accident, which took place about a mile north of the village of New Paltz at a point where the old road branches off from the new state road. The scene of the accident is near the end of the long stretch just before entering the village when coming from the direction of Kingston. The road at that point takes a slight bend.

The examination of witnesses was conducted by Francis C. Merritt, who represented the district attorney in the matter.

Doctor Testifies.

Dr. H. A. Trainor of New Paltz testified to injuries which he found Mrs. McLaren suffering from at the time he arrived at the scene shortly after the accident. His opinion was that she died instantly. She was thrown from the truck. He described in detail what his examination disclosed.

Identifies Photographs.

Lou Merrilat of the Pennington studio identified several photographs, which he had made of the scene and also the Stewart truck at a garage in New Paltz, where it had been taken after the accident.

Truck Wheels in Ditch.

Leston DuBois one of the first arrivals at the scene testified that he had gone to the scene of the accident on the evening of April 8 at about 9:30 o'clock. The accident he said was about a mile north of the village. He arrived about 15 minutes after the accident happened. He saw the body of Mrs. McLaren lying on the ground along side the wrecked truck. Her husband and other people were there when he arrived. At that time Mr. McLaren was kneeling over his wife's body crying.

The truck was about middle ways in the road the front out in the road and the rear end in the left hand ditch. He saw a pole to the left of the road coming from New Paltz which had evidently been hit and half of it had been carried away. The road bends to the right a short distance below the accident toward New Paltz. The rear wheels of the truck were in the ditch. He did not notice the tracks of the car and did not examine the car very carefully.

There is a curve just before you get to the place where the accident happened but there was nothing he knew of to obstruct the view except passing traffic.

He saw the body of Mrs. McLaren in the undertaking parlors of Van Pine at New Paltz after.

The running gear of the front end of the truck was knocked loose from the frame and was back under the rear wheel housing.

Heard The Crash.

David Jewett, who resides near New Paltz and about a quarter of a mile from the scene of the accident testified that it had happened near the junction of the old and new roads. He had seen Mr. McLaren at his home when he delivered freight there. On the night of the accident he heard the crash at his home a quarter of a mile away as he was coming from closing up his barns. He went to the scene arriving about 5 or 10 minutes after the crash. Mrs. McLaren was on the ground alongside the truck with her body lying parallel with the truck, her head toward the front and her feet toward the back of the truck. The truck was across the road with the front end in the road and the rear end in the ditch at the left of the road. He saw she was seriously injured but did not examine her closely.

Before you get to the point where the car lay, coming from New Paltz the direction the car came from, there is a slight bend in the road. He observed the pole about 1-3 split off. It was dark and he did not observe any tracks made by the car. There was no obstruction at the bend in the road.

Asked if a car driven at a high rate of speed across the arc of the turn might not hit the pole he said it might if the car had partly negotiated the turn before it left the roadway. He said that George Hasbrouck's car went after Dr. Trainor after he got there. He left the scene before the body was taken away. He went to telephone for Mr. McLaren who wanted to notify relatives. From the pole which had been hit to where the truck lay it was about 75 feet.

Car Was Going Fast.

George Hasbrouck who resides about half a mile away was called. He arrived about 9:10 or thereabouts. He heard the crash at his home and went to the scene. He arrived in about 10 minutes. Mr. Jewett and his brother-in-law were there when he arrived. He described the scene about as the previous witness had. The pole was about 75 feet from where the car lay and the tracks were about 125 feet from the pole in the road. There was not much of a ditch at the point but

Injured by Gas Stove Explosion

Percy Krom Is Taken to Hospital Following Explosion of Gas Stove at Opera Lunch—Plate Glass Windows Broken.

A few minutes after 8 o'clock this morning the gas stove in the kitchen of the Opera Lunch on Fair street exploded, badly damaging the restaurant. Percy Krom, an employe, who was standing near the kitchen door, was thrown to the floor by the blast and injured. He was taken to the Kingston City Hospital. Mel Steen, chef, had just left the kitchen a moment before and escaped injury.

The force of the explosion broke out two large plate glass windows in the front scattering the glass over the pavements. The windows in the kitchen were broken out as were some of the side windows in the dining room.

A few months ago the gas range exploded but no one was injured at that time and the place was not badly damaged. Mr. R. Bartlett recently purchased the Opera Lunch from Mrs. Burgevin, who formerly owned and conducted it.

The extent of Mr. Krom's injuries are not known at this time but he was burned as well as injured about the eyes.

Fire Hydrant at Kingston Point

Superintendent Harrison of Water Department has Force of Men Busy Laying 6 Inch Pipe—Point Was Without Fire Protection.

This morning Superintendent Harrison of the water department placed a gang of twenty men at work extending a water main through Delaware avenue from North street to Kingston Point. This section of the city has been without fire protection as the only water supplied Kingston Point Park and houses in that locality was through a two inch water pipe, which was laid on top of the ground, and which caused considerable trouble during the winter months.

The work of laying a six inch water main starts from the intersection of North street and Delaware avenue and runs through Delaware to the Newcombe Oil Company plant.

Pipe laying is accomplished under difficulties. The pipe line is being laid on the left hand side of Delaware avenue going toward Kingston Point. The road bed is of Willite which is not being torn up as the pipe is laid alongside the roadway.

Superintendent Harrison stated today that the ground is marshy and that the laying of pipe is held up from time to time by the rising tide which floods the marshy ground and at times extends over the Willite pavement.

As soon as the six inch main is laid a fire hydrant will also be installed at Kingston Point to afford fire protection there. At the time the Oriental Hotel burned down the fire department in order to throw water on the flames were forced to use the big pumper and pump water from the river.

No fire hydrant has ever been installed at Kingston Point as two inch pipe would not afford sufficient flow of water to make it effective.

Mystery Deepens In Dillon Death

Police Baffled as to Cause of Murder of Dr. William A. Dillon, Prominent Surgeon and Athlete—Investigate Dual Personality.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Louis, Mo., May 2.—With the hour of inquest at hand into the murder of Dr. William A. Dillon, prominent surgeon and formerly widely known athlete, police were little nearer a solution today of the mysterious slaying, than at the hour of the finding of his body on the Washington University compus yesterday. He was found beaten and shot to death. Two clues were being closely followed today. The first was a series of telephone calls to the doctor at his exclusive apartment hotel several days before his death. A switch board operator declared threats were made on his life. The man who placed the calls, a resident of an exclusive section, was located early today but was released after questioning. His name withheld.

The second line investigation bears on the seeming dual personality of the slain surgeon. While known to his colleagues and St. Louis society in general as a man well respected in his profession and who for years has been recognized as an honorary member of the Washington University faculty police exposed another side of Dillon's strange character that opened possibilities of a murder motive.

The autopsies were delving into Dr. Dillon's past activities to determine who were his enemies, if he had any.

The investigation was held up for a time last night while differences between city and county authorities over jurisdiction in the case were being settled.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by Mary Graham Bonner

ALLIE BAA'S CLOTHES

Allie Baa, you know, is the rag doll. She is loved by everyone, but her little mother loves her best of all.

Allie Felt Very Proud.

Allie's whole name, you remember, is Alice Gustave Ariel Star Jewel Bright Carmen Carol Cucumber Green.

Allie's mother has for her play name the name of Mrs. Cucumber Green.

Allie has a painted face which has to be repainted every once in a while, for so much kissing wears on a face of Allie's kind.

But Allie wouldn't have it any other way. You see she is always called Allie Baa or Allie for short.

Her long name is only for best, dress-up occasions.

Now it was Allie's mother's birthday and Allie was given a beautiful flower to wear in her sailor blouse. Allie felt very proud as she sat up with the flower in her buttonhole.

But there was one thing for which Allie was waiting. She didn't have many clothes.

Mrs. Cucumber Green loved to housecleen and to look after her children and to dress and undress them and to tie ribbons about their necks when they went out to parties, but she was not fond of sewing.

It was the hardest thing in the world for her to do.

She disliked it more than anything else.

So Allie didn't have many clothes.

Allie didn't mind.

She had a nice sailor blouse and a dark blue skirt with yellow pin stripes, a little apron her grannie had made for her, a pink and white knitted scarf, a pink and white knitted cap, and a pink and white pair of knitted shoes which were too small for her feet so the heels had been cut out.

This was her wardrobe. And now it was very dirty. Allie was waiting patiently to have her clothes washed. They had been brushed off, but they needed a good tubbing.

Allie was quite ready to go to bed for a day or two while her clothes were washed. She would be glad to do that.

For she was looking forward to having nice, clean clothes on once more.

She was tired of her dirty clothes. They needed to be washed so badly.

In fact they needed to be washed so badly that you could hardly tell the colors if you didn't know them.

Allie sat and waited patiently. She didn't say a word. Day after day passed by. She had been decorated for her mother' birthday by a beautiful flower, but her clothes had not been washed.

Still she didn't say a word.

They could see the way her clothes looked. She would shame them into washing her clothes by her silence.

She would not say a word. She would wait and see.

Surely they would be more anxious to do her clothes when she was so patient.

Instead of making a fuss she was sitting just as quietly as ever.

Instead of scolding she was looking at everyone with just as sweet an expression as ever.

Nothing upset Allie's perfect disposition. But she did long, just the same, to have her clothes washed.

Oh, to be nice and spick and span again!

Oh, to be dressed in clean, clean clothes. Then she would smell of pleasant soap instead of dust.

That would be such a nice change.

Her Clothes Were Going to Be Washed.

How long would it take them to be shamed into doing anything—yet they had said they would. They had promised they would.

She sat still patiently waiting.

It was enough to make her mad.

But she kept her temper.

And then, at last she was undressed. Her clothes were going to be washed.

They were washed and ironed and ready, finally. Once more she was in clean clothes. It was very pleasant for a rag doll to feel well-dressed once more. Clean clothes made such a difference.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

There are two ways of filling a place. One is to grow up to it, and the other is to swell up to it.

BALANCING THE RATIONS

After our agriculturists discovered how to feed their calves and pigs on a balanced ration to produce the best animal in the shortest time at the least expense, a few dietitians thought the human baby, being more important, could profit by their investigations. Even after years of education by schools of household economics there are comparatively few women who seriously think along these lines. Instinct may be a good guide with some women, but it is not a safe one for the majority, which is painfully shown by the number of sufferers from all sorts of stomach troubles.

There are countless numbers of people in middle life today who are handicapped because of improper feeding in their youth.

In cold weather we desire heat-producing food, such as pork; hearty and richer food those living in a warm climate do not need. The occupation of a person governs his food. The lumberman working in the open will eat of heavy hearty foods and needs them; the desk worker should have easily digested foods and dinner at a time when more time for rest can be given after it. Age and youth need different foods as we know, and those in delicate health need every care given to the food with which they are served. If we keep in mind the three food principles, those which build up tissue and supply waste, called proteins, represented by meats, eggs, milk; the carbohydrates, energy-producing foods, such as sugars, and starches, and the fats, found in butter, nuts and meat, it will not be hard to arrange a balanced diet.

The growing child needs bone and muscle-building food which is found in milk products, eggs and fresh vegetables.

The grown adult, who has surplus fat, should limit the amount of food to twelve or fourteen hundred calories per day. The calorie is a measure of heat. It is the amount used to raise one pound of water four degrees.

The problem of foods, as to quantity and food value, must be worked out by every housewife who has the responsibility of feeding a family.

Today We Celebrate

ELIAS BOUDINET.

Was the first president of the American Bible Society and was born in Philadelphia 185 years ago today, descended from Huguenot stock. Getting the best education that the colonies could give, then studied law, commencing practice in New Jersey. He was an early and ardent advocate for American independence, and in the Revolutionary War was commissary general of prisoners and a member of congress. In 1782, he was made president of congress, and as such signed the Treaty of Peace. He was next superintendent of the mint, but in 1805 retired from his long and useful public life to settle in Burlington, N. J. When the American Bible Society was founded in 1816 he was chosen its first president. He died in Burlington about 1823.

MESSALINA.

Messalina was the wife of the infamous Nero. She was also called Statilia, and was descended from a consular family, and married the Consul Atticus Vistieus, whom Nero murdered. Messalina revolved her husband's murderer with tenderness and married four husbands before she came to the imperial throne. After the death of Nero, in 68, she retired from public life and occupied herself with literary pursuits.

Otho, the eighth emperor of Rome, next addressed her, but before their marriage he destroyed himself, in the year A. D. 69.

THE HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY.

The first settlements in Western Canada were established by the Hudson's Bay Company, which like the "John" (East India) Company, was more influential in spreading British authority than "an army with banners" could have been.

This historic commercial organization, about which even today many writers, such, for instance as Vingie E. Roe, and many others, are weaving the web of their historical romances, was chartered by Charles II, two hundred and fifty-five years ago today, May 2, 1670.

For two centuries this great corporation was supreme in the northern and western parts of what is now the Dominion of Canada, and there was no appeal from the decision of its Factors, as far as the natives were concerned. Prince Rupert and seventeen other nobles were the principal incorporators of the Hudson's Bay Company, the full title of which was the "Governor and Company of Adventurers of England Trading Into Hudson's Bay."

The vast stretch of country given over to the company was known as Rupert's Land. The first settlements were made at Churchill and Hayes's Rivers, and on the James Bay.

Although harassed for a time by the French and later by competing companies, the H. B. Co. was immensely profitable from the first.

Trading Into Hudson's Bay.

MINNEWASKA SOCIAL CLUB DANCE A SUCCESS

The bad weather Thursday evening did not prevent a capacity crowd from attending the springtime dance of Minnewaska Social Club at Fyshian Hall. The play which preceded the dance, "A Wedding at Pumpkin Center," went over big. Henry Mechold, leader of the Hicksville band gave the use to Zorra's orchestra which furnished the old time music for the play. Members of the club were well pleased with the attendance and great credit is due Mr. Mechold for his untiring efforts to make the affair a success. This is the first time that the play had been given outside a Red Men's organization.

On May 8, the play will be put on at St. Remy for the benefit of the St. Remy Tribe of Red men.

Considerable talk was heard inquiring when the Red Men would put on another play and entertainment here. Several of the young men who attended the play and dance were interested in the order and several applications were received for membership in Minnewaska Tribe.

The costumes for the play were very real, being genuine "Indian" attire.

DRIVE SAFELY TO PREVENT INJURY

National Safety Council Issues Set of Rules for Running Cars.

Following its announcement recently that twenty thousand persons were killed in motor car accidents in the United States in 1924 the national safety council has issued from Chicago, the following statement regarding safe and efficient driving, preliminary to waging a nationwide campaign against motor car accidents this spring.

"A man may have a mechanically perfect car," says the national safety council, "but because of careless driving he may cause an accident that results in serious injury or death to himself or others.

"A moment or two saved today by reckless speeding is not efficiency, for speeding tomorrow may result in a smash that will lay up the car for several days and you for several months. Hurrying to get ahead of a train, a street car or another vehicle saves only a moment or two at the ultimate destination and the gain is not worth the price; there is too much danger of accident.

Dusk a Dangerous Time.

"The best drivers are especially careful at dusk or twilight. There is then neither enough daylight nor sufficient artificial light to make objects distinguishable at ordinary distances.

"Slow up for all turns in the road. Blind corners are dangerous. When it is impossible to see what is coming from around the corner be prepared to stop. Sound horn a short distance before reaching the intersection.

"Don't zig-zag from one side of the street to the other.

"Use chains whenever there is danger of skidding. Install chains on both rear wheels or none at all. Only one chain is sometimes worse than none. Chains on all four wheels help the steering of the car.

"Hitting ruts at too high a speed may cause the driver to lose control of his car.

"When attempting to pass another vehicle going in the same direction start turning out (to the left) at least 75 feet to the rear. If you get too close your view of the road ahead is obstructed and you may turn directly in front of another car coming toward you. When you have passed a car do not cut back into the road nor slow down too soon.

Be Careful When Backing.

"Always be careful when backing. Sound horn, signal other cars, and look back (not ahead), to see where you are going. Mirrors are valuable at all times. Bumpers also have a safety feature not to be overlooked.

"Clean windshields give you a clear view ahead. Every car should have a secondary windshield (rain visor) or windshield wiper which will prevent snow or rain from obstructing the driver's view.

"When driving do not attempt to carry on a conversation with others in the car. Small children should preferably sit in the rear of the car; they should never be held in or between the arms of the driver. Safe driving demands your full and undivided attention.

"Be sure and signal when driving forward or away from the curb.

"The traffic officer has a difficult job at the best, and drivers should make every effort to assist him. He is responsible for all accidents which happen at his station. Let us treat him as we expect him to treat us.

"The national safety council calls on both the motor car drivers and pedestrians to assist community safety councils, automobile clubs and all other groups of citizens in their efforts to reduce the ever increasing yearly motor car accident death toll."

When in a Rainstorm

During a rainstorm park with the car headed uphill if you want to avoid streams of water running down over dash, hood and windshield. Let the water from the top of the car run off at the back where it is not so likely to leave streaks when the car dries.

Hints Worth Remembering in Care of Motor Cars

Danger of scratches or other injury to the enamel finish of a car while working around the engine may be obviated by covering the fender with a piece of oilcloth lined with some soft material.

If one front tire shows the correct pressure, don't bother to test the other unless steering is troublesome. When the car does not draw toward one side or the other, front tires are equally inflated. Testing one is the same as testing both.

Keep the pliers in some convenient location. They are your most useful motor tool. In an emergency they will do the work of a variety of wrenches. You can hammer with them. And frequently one end is designed as a screwdriver. Handy pliers save unlocking the tool compartment or raising the cushions.

In rolling up rain curtains—the best way to carry them—start with a front curtain first, and then add the forward ones in order. Make a roll for each side. Since the rearward curtains are invariably the first needed when it rains or turns off cold, finding the right curtain is merely a matter of peeling the rolls in order.

Ever attach the grease gun to a nipple to have the grease work out at the juncture instead of at the bearing itself? You can waste a lot of good time and energy trying to discover the trouble, and you may even go to the unnecessary expense of buying a new outfit—or neglecting the job altogether. All you have to do is to remember that this sort of trouble is caused by dirt or bits of foreign matter, either on the nipple or in the nipple end of the high-pressure tube. A small pebble will render the gun useless until it is removed.

The rag you use for cleaning up as you grease the car is the one to use for rubbing up the axles, bumpers, springs, etc.

When you cannot seem to force grease into a spring bolt, and if you do not have a booster for the gun, there is another way out. Hook up the gun and tube, and give it as much pressure as you can. Then tie the gun to the car and drive over a rough piece of street or roadway. The action of the springs will free the obstruction in the spring bolt greaseway with the result that the old grease will work out and be replaced by the new.

Simple Seat for Extra Hand Is Easy to Put On

Long-haul trucks carrying building material, furniture, etc., usually have a crew of sufficient size to enable the loading and unloading to be done with ease and dispatch. Long journeys require some facilities for seating the crew, and where the extra hand cannot be accommodated on the load, or in wet weather, the simple folding seat shown in the drawing will be appreciated, as the regular truck seat usually will not take more than two without inconveniencing the driver.

The Extra Helper Is Accommodated on a Long Haul by a Simple Folding Seat in the Cab.

The seat proper is hinged to a piece of wood bolted to the inside of the dash, and has two slides made of flat steel screwed to the underside. The bracket that supports the seat is also hinged to the dash, and, at the top, has a piece of round steel that will slide under the flat-steel slides fastened to it. The simplest method of attaching the rod is to weld it to a flat-steel bracket, which is drilled for heavy screws. The top of the seat may be padded, and, when not required, folds flat against the dash. With this arrangement the extra hand is fully protected from rain and snow. —Popular Mechanics Magazine.

"Good Citizenship Begins At Home" Says Hoover In Better Homes Plea As Demonstration Week Approaches

As is the home, so are the community and the nation. To give every American family the opportunity to make the most of its home in every way, Better Homes in America was formed and now is working throughout the nation.

Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, who is president of Better Homes in America, is convinced that the home is of the most vital importance to the future of America. He says: "The next generation will be called on to show public spirited citizenship to an increasing degree if it is to find a solution to the problems that await it. Will it move toward clean government, healthy development of our economic and social system, and fair dealing and good will between nations? Or will it drift towards corruption in government, bitter class conflicts, and the international hatreds and jealousies that culminate in war? • • • If good citizenship in the broadest sense of the term is to be the deciding factor, and I believe that it will be, we must make it as vital a matter as earning our daily bread.

The founder of the movement, Mrs. William Brown Meloney, warmly seconds Mr. Hoover's beliefs.

"This is a new day in America," says Mrs. Meloney. "A day of better homes. In every state and every county of this country there are thousands of women hard at work for Better Homes in America.

"There are 18,000,000 homes in America—the largest single industry in the world—and it is worth the thought of the best minds in the land to increase its efficiency, its satisfaction, and therefore its sacred product."

Mrs. A. H. Reeve, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and a member of the Advisory Council of Better Homes in America, is one of the hardest workers toward the extension of the "better homes" movement so that every American family may receive the benefits of this purely educational and vitally important work. The 12,000 local Parent-Teachers' Associations throughout the United States are co-operating whole-heartedly with the movement, which culminates this year in Better Homes Week—May 11th to 17th inclusive.

THE LEAGUE'S DANGER.

There could have been little more than calculating politics in the outcry against the League of Nations as a super state that would take away the independence even of such great powers as the United States and the British empire. The real danger is that a few great powers will dominate the League, as they have dominated the world, and that the old conditions will survive in another form. This, in general, is the view taken by Rafael Nieto, Mexico's Minister to Italy, who, in a notable article in the Revue de Geneve (reprinted in English in the Living Age,) says that if the smaller nations can have real influence in the League it will live, but if the great powers dominate it will perish. This is quite logical, for if the great powers continue to rule through the League there will be no change in the old conditions, and the League as "a parliament of mankind" will have no excuse for existence.

Already, says Minister Nieto, at every council and assembly of the League "a little nucleus of privileged delegates from the stronger nations deliberate secretly together, reach agreements, and dictate resolutions of which representatives of the non-privileged nations know nothing whatever, until at some subsequent public session the master-manipulators impose their decisions upon the apathetic or resigned delegates of the auxiliary powers." Though this may exaggerate the existing situation, a tendency in that direction will be accepted as inevitable by all experienced observers of human affairs. Minister Nieto disagrees with those who hold that the one thing needful to make the League a great success is the active support of the United States as a member, believing that this would more surely bring the League under the domination of two or three of the greatest powers. He says:

So long as the great American Power has an administration of the present extremely conservative type its influence in the League would not promote the equal rights of members and international cooperation, any more than it has favored them in the Pan-American Union and at Pan-American congresses. Those who have followed carefully the development of Pan-Americanism know well that if it were not for the privileged position the United States has assumed, and the opposition shown by Washington's representatives to every advanced proposal submitted to inter-American congresses, we should already have in the Western Hemisphere an international court of justice and a system of compulsory arbitration. Were the United States within the League, it would support in an aggravated form the anti-League policy of Mr. Baldwin and his Cabinet—a policy of honeyed words and flattery for that institution at the same time that they weaken and discredit by their treatment of practical issues like Egypt, the Protocol, the Irish Treaty and the Eight-hour Agreement.

Referring to the Philippines and American intervention in Haiti and Central America, Minister Nieto submits that "the imperialism of the United States, so long as it remains what it is, would be out of place in the League of Nations," and declares that this country's influence "is less prejudicial to the development of international cooperation while it remains outside the League than it would be as a member of that body." The reader may conclude that Minister Nieto speaks from fear of and prejudice against the United States, and yet recognize that he clearly perceived the chief danger which threatens the League of Nations.

SIR BRODERICK'S DISASTER.

For obvious reasons American bootleggers have been eager to conceal their identity, but Sir Broderick Hartwell, the rum-running baronet, felt that he could stand boldly in the open and even advertise his business in the newspapers of Great Britain. The publicity he is now enjoying, however, is less to his liking. After sending six large shipments of liquor to America, profitably disposing of them, and paying large dividends to the stockholders, his seventh shipment ran into disaster. Thirty thousand bottles of his Scotch were seized by the American coast guards and he described the situation as "appalling." But, as it happens, no official record of any such seizure exists, doubt as to whether it occurred has found utterance, and it is even hinted that Sir Broderick, intending to retire, had planned to pocket the entire profit of his seventh venture and leave his stockholders in the lurch.

Whatever the truth of the matter, the rum-running baronet seems to have lost much of his formerly respectable standing, and now can hardly go about with his old gay and bold front, boasting of nothing to conceal and nothing to explain. He is not only a target of criticism but the accounts indicate suspicion of double dealing on his part. This is a come-down indeed for the British nobleman who employed the freedom of the high seas to enrich himself while flouting the laws of a country with which his own is solicitous to cultivate friendly relations.

That Body of Yours

HINT ON HEAD COLDS.

These little head colds, with a collection of mucous in the nose and throat, are very common and very troublesome.

That the lining membrane in some folks is very easily disturbed is now generally admitted. With dust, changing from a cold to a hot, or from a hot to a cold atmosphere, the advent of damp weather, seem to irritate the lining membrane of the nose, and immediately there is a great amount of mucous manufactured, which must be removed.

Then the lining will appear to stop manufacturing the mucous, and the nose will become "stuffed up."

The various methods used all seem to be of help. That is using salt and water as a spray, or putting it up the nostril with a small dropper, and drawing it through the nose to throat and then expectorating it. If a passage is not maintained at least on one side, it means breathing through the mouth, with a consequent drying of the throat, due to the air going into the lungs taking the moisture from the mouth and throat, instead of from the moist lining of the nose.

If in addition to this, the septhum or division between the two nostrils is bent too much to one side, then a blockade of the passage may occur. It is not serious, but extremely annoying.

A little point that may be of help when you are trying to get some sleep, is to lie on the same side as the blocked nostril. If you do this then the outer wall of the nose falls away from the septum, instead of toward it, and you thus get more room.

This may give you sufficient air, so that you will not have to breathe through the mouth.

Try it.

GOOD ROADS

PAVED HIGHWAYS SHOW BIG GAINS

According to American Automobile association officials, substantial progress is being made in the development of a national system of highways. The association cites as an example the fact that it is now possible for a motorist to start from the zero milestone in Washington and make a circular tour of 2,350 miles back to Washington over a continuous dustless paved highway.

This is but one of many numerous long stretches of paved highway, says the A. A. A. touring and transportation board. The highway from Vancouver, B. C., to San Diego, covering a distance of more than 1,700 miles, is another example. Each year constantly increasing mileage of continuous paved highway is added to the national highway system of the country as the various states fill in gaps on trunk line highways.

The greatest need for continuous paved highway is between northern and southern points, as the South during the winter months offers climatic and scenic attractions which no other section can provide. The same is true of similar attractions for the motorists of the South, which are to be found in the northern states in the summer months. Even in the South marked progress is being made. The southern states were naturally slower in getting started in their development of trunk line highways. The resources which can be drawn upon for road building purposes are not as great. Among the eastern seaboard states North Carolina is leading the way for her sister states.

The barrier between the northern and southern travel through the central tier of states has been the mountain ranges in Kentucky and Tennessee. Both of these states have spent millions on the removal of these barriers. In both states definite proposals of the issuance of $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 in state bonds are being considered. This will give these states ample funds to complete the work under way and provide the same facilities of easy travel as between the North and South as now exist in the North between the eastern and central states.

Paved Roads Increase Motor Vehicle Travel

Every motorist has seen instances of where comparatively little-used roads become arteries of heavy traffic almost as soon as the pavement of the new surfacing was ready for use.

An instance of a well-known highway will serve to bring out this point. In 1919 a stretch of the Pacific highway near Medford, Ore., was paved. In 1919 4,448 tourist automobiles passed over the stretch of road, while in 1920 the number increased to 22,000.

Plainly, the paving of highways means that the traffic over them must be increased. This must result in congestion of vehicles unless the roads are built wider than was necessary in the case of the dirt or gravel highway.

And we find that everywhere today it is the policy of road builders to lay wider pavements on the highways. They realize that this is the only way of making motor traffic safe and efficient to the highest possible degree. We find that in many places, where old pavements have become inadequate because of the constant increase in the number of motor vehicles, those in charge of road-construction programs have made them wider by adding new strips of pavement at the side.

The user of roads must recognize the need of wider pavements and do his part in the work to bring wider highways for his community. Such work on his part will make driving more safe and more comfortable for him as well as all other users of the roads.

Good Roads Squibs

What's the issue, from the standpoint of the autoist's pocketbook, good roads or mud ruts?

• • •

Thirty-one states and Alaska share in the pro-rata distribution of funds made each year by the forest service to those states and territories containing national forest lands.

• • •

More than $10,000,000 has been spent in highway construction—paving, grading and bridges—to bring the famous Rankhead—Old Spanish trail route through the Southwest—to its present all-year-round perfection.

• • •

Traffic laws which differ in different states and different towns in the same state are a cause of confusion, accident, loss of property, and loss of life. Uniform traffic laws, the same the country over, will promote safety.

• • •

Plans for a highway from New Orleans to Portland, Ore., which will follow as nearly as possible the boundary lines of the old Louisiana Purchase, have been officially launched. It will commemorate the purchase of the territory by the United States.

Radio Health Talk for Boys

Dr. Albert Pfeiffer Gave Radio Health Talk, Broadcast Over WGY, Friday on "Building the Man."

"Building the Man"—a discourse particularly intended for boys, was the subject of Dr. Albert Pfeiffer's health talk broadcast Friday evening from Station WGY, Schenectady.

Dr. Pfeiffer, who is director of the division of social hygiene of the state department of health, is also an officer of the U. S. public health service, and was formerly a lieutenant colonel in the army. He has a distinct message for parents, when he asks: "Are you the pal and confidant of your boy? Does he feel free to come to you for advice and information regarding the dangers which beset him on the highway of adolescence? Or do you by your negative action force him to turn to unreliable sources for false and distorted ideas?"

Dr. Pfeiffer states that parents themselves should furnish their boys with the necessary information, or else it should be given by the physical director of the school or Y. M. C. A. or by the Scout Master, and not by the street corner acquaintance or the medical quack, who, he states, is interested not in health but solely in one's pocketbook.

According to Dr. Pfeiffer, "Theodore Roosevelt, the immortal 'Teddy,' who was the friend and hero of all boys, once said: 'If you're going to do anything permanent for the average man you have to begin before he is a man.' Boys are the world's greatest asset, and the greatest asset for the boy is health. This is international boys' week, and this talk is intended particularly for the boys who are listening in—you boys who one day will constitute the man power of this great and glorious country.

"When your Old Uncle Sam needed help, and the young men of the nation jumped at the chance to serve the colors, nearly one-half of them were doomed to disappointment: they were unfit physically. The commonest causes of their disabilities were defective eyesight, poor teeth, bad feet, and the so-called 'social diseases'—the last three all preventable.

"Whether you go to school, or whether you work, you boys should all know the laws of physical and mental efficiency. This means that you must make positive efforts through self-discipline and by health activities to keep your bodies and your minds in prime condition. The future of the country depends on you.

"Now—what constitutes fitness? First, muscular strength; second, endurance; third, energy; fourth, willpower; fifth, courage; and sixth, self-control. These combined will create a vigorous manhood. To achieve all these requires that you follow certain training rules; you know that all athletes have to carry out certain rules set by their coaches. The training regulations you should follow are:

"First—daily exercise of the right kind, enough to cause free sweating, followed by a shower bath or washdown; then a rub with a coarse towel until the skin glows.

Second—work and exercise in the fresh air.

Third—sleep eight to nine hours every night in fresh air winter and summer.

Fourth—eat good, wholesome food.

Fifth—develop vigor, character and manhood by acquiring and applying early the knowledge of the underlying causes of body changes during the growth period known as 'adolescence.'

"You boys of today should have more courage, idealism and chivalry than the boys of past generations. Pick a great leader or hero to act as your ideal and as an inspiration for your conduct. Health and character building are best exemplified in the Boy Scout movement for the younger boys, and the Plattsburgh idea for the elder ones. Both teach general and social hygiene, self-reliance, initiative, self-defense and self-respect. At their camps you are taught to stand, to walk, and to breathe properly, how best to develop the body and the mind, and all the fundamentals of keeping fit, and of good citizenship.

"If you are in need of advice, your State Department of Health at the Capitol in Albany is always ready to answer questions at any time."

What is a Barrett Built-Up Roof?

The Barrett Built-Up Roof consists of several alternate layers of Barrett Pitch and Barrett Felt with a surface covering of gravel or slag.

These materials are used because 67 years' experience has proved:

—that no other bitumen has the weather-resisting properties of this high grade pitch.

—that no other felt surpasses the enduring strength of Barrett Felt.

—that no other surfacing material renders a roof so highly fire-resistant as gravel or slag. Finally . . .

Baby's Day At K. C. Hospital

The principal business which came before the hospital auxiliary at its regular meeting this week was the completion of a plan for observing National Hospital Day on May 12th as designated by the American Hospital Association.

National Hospital Day is a day set apart to make people better acquainted with hospitals, their importance, their services, and their needs; to bring the community to a realization of what the hospital does and how it does it. In spite of all the effort to inform the public concerning the function and scope of hospitals, a great deal of misunderstanding exists. Until this is cleared away, the hospital cannot hope to get the interest and support it deserves and needs.

President Coolidge has heartily endorsed the National Hospital Day movement, and so did the late President Harding. The United States Public Health service, governors, mayors, leading business men, professional and religious leaders also have cooperated in calling attention to the day as a means of emphasizing the important role played in the public welfare by hospitals.

Could Florence Nightingale, whose birthday is commemorated in the annual celebration of National Hospital Day, return to this earth and see the demonstrations of modern care for the sick which will be made throughout this broad land on that day, she would be astounded. Probably, by no stretch of her imagination could she have foreseen that in the years to come great nations would unite in honoring her memory and paying tribute to the fruits of her efforts.

There are many ways in which to celebrate this day, and the City of Kingston Hospital has decided to observe this year by having what is called "Baby's Day." An invitation will be extended to every baby born in the hospital during the past year to come to the hospital with his or her mother on that day between the hours of two and five in the afternoon, when they will be inspected and each baby will be presented with a toy of some kind

The community at large will also be welcome at this time to visit the hospital. Doctors, nurses and members of the auxiliary will be most happy to extend all possible courtesy to the guests.

Mayor Block has expressed his approbation of this plan in the following letter to the president of the auxiliary.

Kingston, N. Y., April 27, 1925

Mrs. Charlotte W. Tappen, President Auxiliary of the City of Kingston Hospital, Kingston, N. Y.

My Dear Mrs. Tappen:

Permit me to express my appreciation for the decision of your organization and the management of the Kingston City Hospitl to observe National Hospital Day on May 12th as set apart by the American Hospital Association. This action on your part must surely tend to make the people of our city realize the necessity and advantages of institutions of this kind and to gain their support and help in solving their problems.

For many years Kingston got along without hospital facilities of any kind and there were many among us who saw no great need for their establishment. Now that we have two institutions of this kind, and that their facilities are taxed to the utmost, it is realized that well organized and properly conducted hospitals are not only a necessity but are an indispensable asset to our community. Modern developments of life makes it unavoidable that more of our people interest themselves and cooperate in advancing the standard and growth of such institutions.

We have every reason to be proud of the work being performed by the Kingston City Hospital and I bespeak for its future a more united effort and additional cooperation from those who in the past have held aloof or failed to realize its importance.

Very sincerely yours,
MORRIS BLOCK,
Mayor.

SOUTH AMERICAN INDIANS STILL ARE UNCIVILIZED

So Numerous and Inaccessible Are They That No Census Has Ever Been Taken.

Montevideo.—In a report on "The Indians of South America," prepared by a commission headed by Dr. William I. Haven, secretary of the American Bible society, for presentation to the Congress on Christian Work in South America, it was declared that there are between 5,000,000 and 10,000,000 Indians in South America who have never been reached by the gospel or by modern civilization. So numerous and so inaccessible are these people that no census of them ever has been taken.

The report points out that some attempt has been made to assist in the civilization and christianizing of these Indians by governments and by some of the early missionaries of the Catholic church.

Governments have assisted somewhat in agriculture, and the early missionaries did some work in translation, in education and in religious work. Evangelical missionaries have taught and preached among some tribes in the highlands of Bolivia in the Peruvian Andes, in the southern part of Chile and Paraguay, and in Brazil.

"But, on the whole," says the report, "almost nothing has been done, at least in an organized, systematic, comprehensive way, and the people are living feebly and like a stagnant stream, tilling the soil, fishing in the stream, hunting in the forest, by methods that have not changed for centuries. Disease, pestilential fevers, bites of insects and exposure all prey upon them. Their minds are full of the superstitions of pagan peoples, fearing the presence of spirits in all the mysterious operations of nature. Few realize the great burden of fear which lies like a pall on such untutored minds."

The report points out that since the Indian is largely an agriculturist, any effort to approach him along agricultural lines at once establishes a vital point of contact. During recent years, however, the great cry of the Indians in their appeals to missionaries has been "Give us schools, come teach our children." Where there is such a keen desire for education, the report says, such work cannot fail to be an effective means of approach.

Seek $50,000 for Sin They Lay to Mistake

New York.—Morris Heyman and his wife of 82 Schuyler avenue, Newark, filed suit in the Essex county circuit court for $50,000 against the Castle Ice Cream company of Irvington. They charge that the company has caused them and their guests at their silver wedding anniversary to sin inadvertently.

The complaint states that Heyman ordered 12 bricks of ices from the company to serve to his guests, and that instead of ices, ice cream was sent. He said that the mistake was not discovered until he had eaten the ice cream, and, because they had already eaten meat, they violated a canon of orthodox Jewish law which prohibits eating meat and milk at the same table.

Heyman alleges that his guests became indignant when they learned of the mistake and left hurriedly. He said that his clothing business had depreciated as a result of the incident and that his orthodoxy was under suspicion.

Girl Loses Power to Smile, Gets $25,000

New York.—The ability to smile and weep was valued at $25,000 by a jury in Queens county Supreme court when that amount was awarded May Goldhaar, fourteen, whose face was made immobile by a motor accident. The hearing was before Justice Reigelmann.

On July 8, 1923, while living at Rockaway Beach, Miss Goldhaar was struck by an automobile owned by Paul Wolfson, 455 East One Hundred and Sixty-sixth street, and Max Schmeler, 500 East One Hundred and Thirty-seventh street. The accident caused paralysis of her face and impairment to her speech. It was the contention of her counsel that she was unable either to laugh or to cry. Wolfson and Schmeler announced they would appeal the verdict, it being their defense that the girl dashed into the street and the accident was unavoidable.

U. S. Judges Must Pay for Robes They Wear

Washington.—Judges in courts under the jurisdiction of the attorney general must buy their own robes until congress makes specific appropriations for that purpose, according to a ruling made public by Comptroller General McCarl.

The ruling was made at the request of the attorney general, who asked whether or not appropriations are available for the purchase of judicial robes for the United States district courts.

"The judges have themselves," McCarl declared, "apparently recognized the robes as an article of personal apparel in connection with the custom of wearing them, and this now having been long established there is no proper basis to furnish them at the expense of the United States under an appropriation for general expenses, but specific appropriation therefor would be necessary."

PINK—DAY OR NIGHT— SAYS FASHION

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

No longer can the charge of monotony be laid to necklines. They may be any shape which sets off the contour of one's throat and shoulders, and as high or as low as one desires and good taste permits.

The V line as well as those lines, generally, which give a narrow shouldered effect and are cut deep, is very flattering, and always more slenderizing. A V line which extends to the waistline is not always desirable, but when veiled, it is discreet as well as flattering. For example, a black satin dinner gown with square front decolletage had a narrow V cut to the waist, or, perhaps, below, but this was filled in to the nape of the neck by black tulle which, of course, "took the curse off" the gown, and made it possible for anyone to wear.

Martial et Armand has chosen a graceful curving line for this frock of carnation pink georgette which has a sort of scarf drape resulting from a pleat decidedly reminiscent of a Watteau painting.

Brilliants and silver thread embroidery are effective trimmings. All shades of pink and rose continue to be desirable for artificial light and are also approved for the strong sunlight to which sports clothes are always subjected.

Fertile Spots

"A great many manufacturers would undoubtedly find that by limiting their efforts to more circumscribed areas and intensifying their sales activities in such areas they would not only reduce their selling costs but would probably produce a larger volume of business."

HERBERT HOOVER,
U. S. Secretary of Commerce.

Picking the fertile spots is the way to cut selling costs and to increase sales.

Find the right markets and then advertise in the newspapers in those markets.

THE TEACHER

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

FOR half a century, and more,
The feet of boys forever wore
A pathway to the teacher's door.

Yet, fifty years he took his stand,
A Latin grammar in his hand,
And taught the children of the land.

A general, a great divine,
Yea, men whose names with luster shine,
Learned Latin at that simple shrine.

For often here the great began
To dream, to wish, to hope, to plan;
Today is born tomorrow's man

And so the teacher grew to gray;
Yea, fifty years have passed away
When someone happens on a day

To pause before the teacher's door,
The threshold that the children wore
A half a century or more,

And asks, as that good man appears:
"Are you not weary, tired to tears,
Of teaching Latin all the years?"

A simple answer he employs
To tell a teacher's holy joys:
"I don't teach Latin—I teach boys."

God bless the teacher who can look
The one who teaching undertook.

Not merely for the Latin's sake
But for the holy chance to make
Tomorrow's man, a soul to wake;

Whom nothing wearies, naught annoys,
But gladly all his life employs,
Not teaching Latin—teaching boys.

Loving words will cost but little
Journeying up the hill of life,
But they make the weak and weary

FAVORITE FRUIT DISHES

A LUSCIOUS basket of fruit garnished when possible with its own leaves, is an ornament to any table Next to taste and palatability, we like to have our food appeal to the eye Food nicely served and daintily garnished will be much more appetizing than that which is served carelessly.

Salpicon of Fruit.

Shred pineapple, add a banana or two cut fine, an orange and a grapefruit broken into bits Mix with a cupful of sugar and a tablespoonful of water, boiled together until it hairs; add a tablespoonful of lemon juice, and when cool pour over the fruit. Serve chilled in tall glasses and garnish with a cherry For those who cannot eat uncooked apples or pears, here is a dainty dish Stew the fruit in a rich sirup until tender enough to pierce easily, then decorate with quartered blanched almonds, dust with powdered sugar and return to the oven to finish cooking Pour the sirup around them and use to baste the apples during the cooking Serve with whipped cream and the thick rich sirup If pears are used add a little lemon juice to the sirup

When fresh fruit is not to be obtained use a few preserved strawberries added to a lemon jelly or orange jelly; serve in quivering mounds with whipped cream and garnish with a few berries.

Cored apples filled with nuts and marmalade, covered with a meringue is an attractive way of serving such fruit.

Grated apple added to the white of an egg and powdered sugar and beaten until stiff makes a delicious dessert. Serve garnished with cubes of bright-colored jelly.

Peaches put through a sieve added to plain almond-flavored ice cream are delicious.

Halves of ripe peaches, filled with chopped nuts heaped with sweetened and flavored whipped cream are very good Canned peaches may be used, placing one half on rounds of sponge cake, with plenty of the fruit juice. Serve with cream.

Stewed pears cored and filled with jelly, served with cream, is still another way with fruit

Orange Juice.

For an elderly member of the family who needs a tonic and a jog to the digestive tract, orange juice, from one orange, at least three times a day, is a wonderful health giver. A month of its use will show real results The orange juice contains mineral salts, fruit acids and life giving principles which cannot be given in a more pleasant form Very small babies are fed a teaspoonful of orange juice between feedings thus doing away with cathartics which, except in rare cases, are undesirable.

For Supper or Luncheon.

Oysters wrapped in bacon and cooked under a gas flame until the bacon is crisp, served on toast with a pepper sauce prepared as for peppers on toast, omitting the celery, make a fine supper or luncheon dish Place the oysters on a deep platter and the sauce in the center

Old-Time Stars Find Good Jobs

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, May 2.—Where are the stars of yesterday? asked the great bard, and echo answers where? A fortunate few retire to a life of ease and rego into various small businesses, some of which make money. But the vast majority find a haven in some minor league, getting by on what they know, if anything. Sooner or later, Age, the inevitable, overtakes them and then—oblivion. They can't all be Joe McGinnitys, pitching winning baseball at 52.

Some of them, however, last an unconscionable time. Take the case of Beals Becker, for example. Beals was in the majors some seventeen years ago and since passing down below has been one of the leading hitters of the Class AA Leagues. He is doing nicely right now with Seattle. On the same club is Jim Bagby, who topped the American League pitchers as late as 1920.

Old Timers.

Not far away, at Sacramento, is Ray Keating, a Yankee pitcher of the pre-Chance era; Merlin Kopp, with the Athletics eight years ago, and Bob Schang, brother of Wally, and once with the Giants. At San Francisco you will find Jeff Pfeffer, Pete Kilduff and Sam Agnew, to say nothing of Archie Yelle, Tim Hendryx, another old-time Yankee, and Frank Brower.

Ferdie Schupp, who left handed the National League silly in 1917-18, is with Kansas City in the American Association. So is Dr. John Lavan, Jimmy Zinn, Frank Ellerbe and several others.

More Stars.

Down below we find Harry Courtney, ex-Senator; Hugh Bedient, star of the 1912 world series, while with the Boston Red Sox; "Red" Smith, ex-Dodger and ex-Brave; Wilbur Good, Paul Fittery and Bert Niehoff teamed up on the Atlanta Crackers with several recent major league discards, identity unimportant.

Ray Caldwell, one of the best pitchers of a decade, when right, which was seldom, is with Little Rock. So is Hod Eller, the shine baller, who fanned six White Sox in a row, establishing a world series record in 1919.

Larry Kopf, Red shortstop in the same series, is another Little Rock asset, and right alongside of him is Russell Blackburne, whose $12,000 purchase by the White Sox years ago startled the baseball world of that time.

MORAN BUSINESS FORM A BASEBALL TEAM

Moran Business School organized a baseball team for the coming season. The pitching will depend largely upon Walt Black with Doc Dougherty on the receiving end. Monte Hart, Boyle and Rice will cover the infield with Riley, Tacla, Shirley and Doolin to pick for the outfield.

They are desirous of booking games with any team averaging 140 pounds. They would especially like a game with the Kingston High School. See Thomas Moore, Moran Business School.

Tagging Major League Bases

Raising their championship pennant, the Senators rallied around the flag with five runs in the fifth and beat the Athletics, 9 to 4.

Stoner pitched only one ball but it nearly mangled an innocent bystander in the stands and the winning run coasted home for the Indians while the Tigers stood helplessly by. Score 8 to 7. Cobb and Speaker proceeded to confirm the report that they are good hitters, Ty getting four.

Fonseca's homer with two on and a triple play staked the Phillies to a 6 to 4 victory over the Braves, Hawks and Mokan also contributing circuit hits

Bush and Gaston and nothing but the general idea and were pounded by the White Sox for a 9 to 5 victory over the Browns Sisler carried his hitting streak to sixteen consecutive games and Jacobson wafted a pair out of the park

Hartnett obliged with his eighth homer of the season as the Cubs stepped in from a 6 to 4 decision over the Cards, it being the latter's sixth straight defeat

A five run-rally in the seventh, against Pennock and Hoyt, gave the Red Sox a 7 to 5 verdict over the Yankees.

K.H.S. Nine Plays At Middletown

Friday morning three members of the senior class of the Kingston High School gave a short program in assembly. A presentation, "Han and Haw" (by Bliss) was given by Oscar Weiberg, a presentation, "Parables in Motors," was given by Mabel Kirschner; a monologue, "Military Madness," was given by Helen Koeppen.

This morning the K. H. S baseball team left in autos for Middletown, where they will play its first league game of the season against the Middletown High School. Coach Benson is doing a great piece of work with the K. H. S. boys. Those who saw the team perform at its first practice this year and who also saw it beat the ineligible nine 5-0 Friday afternoon in a three inning contest, agree that there is a marked improvement in the team. The probable K. H. S. lineup for today: Knight, Joyce or Cranston, pitcher; Rider, catcher; Schultz, first; F. Bruhn, second; Flanagan, shortstop; Miller, third; Johnson, left field; L. Bruhn, center; Sahloff, right.

The K. H. S. tennis team faces the fast St. Stephen's seconds at Forsyth Park this afternoon. The lineup is as follows: Captain Herzog, first, Jansen Fowler, second; Coons, third, Powley, fourth; and Miller, fifth.

JAKE RUPPERT SURE YANKEES WILL WIN

New York Teams Have Put in First Bid for the 1925 World Series.

"New York is almost certain to win the American league pennant this summer," according to Colonel Jake Ruppert, owner of the team.

That the New York Giants can hardly lose the National league pennant comes from the office of the Giants.

New York, therefore, has put in the first bid for the 1925 world series. Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis are eligible to bid, but they are hardly brave enough to do it.

"The Yankees are the best team in the American league They have everything a championship club needs—offense, defense and a winning spirit," Colonel Ruppert, who watched the team closely during the training season, maintains.

"Stories that the Yankee players were frivolous in their training work are not well founded. They are in better shape than I have ever seen them before and no college team ever had better spirit.

"The veteran pitchers are in form and in Beall we have a most promising youngster. Combs will improve the outfield and he landed the only place that was open on the team. There is plenty of reserve strength—and what more is needed?

"The players know why they lost the pennant last year and while they feel now that they are still the best club in the league, they will not play that way. They are all on their toes."

Nothing but the most optimistic reports have been received from the Giants' training camp. The office force believes, as most all of the critics who have seen the club down South believe, the Giants are certain to win the pennant.

"Babe" Pinelli Proves That Ty Cobb Is Wrong

"Babe" Pinelli of the Cincinnati Reds is rated one of the best third-sackers in the National league. Yet prior to becoming a star he was twice turned down by Detroit as sky big-league caliber.

Says Pinelli: "Ty Cobb sure did me a big favor when he said I wasn't a big-leaguer and turned me loose. When he sent me to the minors the last thing I told him was that I would make his judgment look bad. I think I have delivered.

"If Cobb hadn't turned thumbs down on me and sent me back to the minors I probably would still be holding down a spot on the Detroit bench, little more than a spectator."

Pennsylvania May Beat Yale

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Philadelphia, Pa., May 2.—Working on the theory that there is an end to everything, even spaghetti, self-constituted experts today were pleased to look forward to an abrupt conclusion to the winning career of Ed Leader and the varsity eight of Yale University, greatest rowing combination of the modern generation The scene of the big moment is the upper reaches of the Schuylkill river, the time, late this afternoon; the occasion, a triangular race featuring the eights of Yale, Pennsylvania and Columbia

The light, springing crew of Pennsylvania, strictly veteran and very gifted at the distance, has been selected as the crew that will beat Yale after eleven consecutive triumphs, including a victory over the world's greatest eights at the Olympic games

A premonition of what may be in store for him is said to have prompted Leader to request a change in the distance from 1 5-16 to 1½ miles, a request that was granted The difference is only a trifle over 300 yards but it may mean the difference between defeat and victory for Yale.

Ideal rowing weather, if such there be, graced the occasion, the day being mild, clear, calm and altogether foolproof

Yale will go to the mark with only three men who rowed in the boat that won the Olympic title on the Seine, and hence, feared the worst It started the year with a strong combination up forward with the veterans Lindley, stroke; Spock, No. 7, and Kingsbury, No 6, supplemented by Captain Wilson at No. 3, but Lindley lost the popular decision to the faculty and had to be replaced by McLaughlin, No. 2 in the freshman boat last year.

Rowing men regard a green stroke as they would a stick of dynamite—likely to blow up when the situation becomes warm. In point of big race experience, McLaughlin is nothing, if not green. On his performance today will rest Yale's chances of future success or failure, since adequate stroke oars are not to be had seven days a week.

Leader himself claims to have no illusions about the immunity of Yale's winning streak. In pre-race interview today, relative to the general tendency to rate the Eli on the basis of its Olympic performance, he said

"People seem to forget that oarsmen are graduated from college from time to time and that the eligibility code often bobs up to deprive a crew of its assets. Such a man was Lindley, recently barred by the faculty

"At the moment, I see no basis for the oft-repeated claim that the present Yale eight is a better crew than that last year. Frankly, I do not know how formidable a combination the 1925 Yale crew will prove."

Y. W. C. A. BOWLING SEASON CLOSED

This year's Y. W. C. A. bowling season is now over, but throughout the season bowling has been very popular with the Y. W. C. A. girls as will be realized from the fact that more than ninety different girls have used the alleys at the Y. M. C. A since the first of November, last. The average attendance each Tuesday evening has been twenty-five. In the league the St. James team was the leader both as to games won and points made, as will be seen by the following:

Teams.	Points.

Clinton Avenue M. E. Church	3,155

Miss Lillian Hyatt had the highest individual score for one game, 136. Miss Marguerite Newkirk was second with a score of 169.

Delaney-Marullo Bout.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, May 2.—Jack Delaney, Bridgeport, Conn., and Young Marullo, of New Orleans, are expected to sign articles of agreement today, calling for them to meet in a ten-round preliminary bout on the Milk Fund program May 29. Negotiations also are underway to match Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, and Jack Burke, of Pittsburgh, for a six-round bout on the same card.

Greb Trounced Rojas.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Detroit, Mich., May 2.—Harry Greb, boss of the middleweight division, gave Senor Romero Rojas of Chile a neat pasting here last night in ten rounds. Greb was too fast and too clever for Rojas. The middleweight title was not at stake.

Pittsfield Pros A Strong Nine

The Pittsfield Pros. will appear in Kingston Sunday afternoon with a very formidable lineup to oppose the Kingston Colonials. The Colonials are ready. When the game is called at 3:30 o'clock the locals will find out what stuff the Bay Staters have.

In the Pittsfield lineup Sunday afternoon will be both Braze and Bergeron, who were with the Pittsfield Eastern League for a tryout this spring. Braze will be in the keystone position in the garden and Bergeron will support the left wing.

The lineup of the Pittsfield team will be as follows:

The Colonials will have their regular lineup with either Mike Moran or Maury McDermott flinging them over. Bill Schwab is now in condition to get into the game and will probably be found in his old position Sunday. He has been out of the game with blood poisoning.

Snail's Pace?

"He moves at a snail's pace," is a remark frequently heard, especially when the subject is a youngster going to school or an office-boy who has been sent on an errand.

But even of the slowest of the younger generation the statement is, to say the least, slightly exaggerated. A recent experiment proved that a snail progresses at the rate of one mile in a fortnight.

If you place a snail on a sheet of glass and watch the underside, you will see a series of ripples along the animal's foot. This foot is a network of muscles, and the rippling is produced by these muscles lengthening the foot in front and shortening it behind, which is the snail's mode of progression.

Composition of Yeast

Yeast, strictly speaking, is a substance consisting of the cells of certain minute fungi. It appears as a surface froth or as a sediment in fruit juices and other saccharine liquids in which it induces alcoholic fermentation. Yeast is made of millions of minute, simple plants. What is popularly called yeast is a culture of such fungi or plants. Manufacturers cannot "make" yeast in the sense that they can mix chemicals and produce it. Yeast increases only by the multiplication of the fungi cells. In other words, you must have seed yeast to start with. Ordinary cake yeast sold on the market is composed of yeast cultures in other substances pressed into cakes.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Discovering Who's Who

By M. and R. M. TERRELL

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

BARTHOLOMEW hadn't been secretary to old William W. Twohey, the old millionaire, long enough to sense every weather signal. Had Bartholomew not been so absorbed with the photograph he held in his hand he might have taken a second look at the old man.

"Pardon me, Mr. Twohey," Bartholomew began, "I wanted to shew you, sir, my little—"

"Bartholomew! Good!" he barked. In his nervousness Bartholomew laid his photograph on the desk.

"Yes, sir," he said.

"Call Grimshaw Detective Agency. Now," snapped the old man.

"What!" gasped Bartholomew.

"Personal. Never mind what. Do as told. Allan F. himself. Make appointment. This morning."

Allan F. Grimshaw himself received the peppery old oil magnate. William W., droning like a phonograph, started the conversation.

"Grimshaw? Course, seen your photograph. Good! Only man can help me. Know me? William W.—"

"Sit down, Mr. Twohey," interrupted gently the detective manager.

William W. fumbled in his pockets.

"Confidential," he muttered. "Youngest kid, Gene. Out in Los Angeles. Wilshire university. Student, understand? Only nineteen."

"You don't mean—"

"Certainly do. Young blood. Impulsive. Gene crazy to get married."

"You send best operative, must be young, to Los Angeles today; understand?"

"I do. Enter Wilshire—"

"University; that's it. Don't care what it costs. Save kid from pitfall any price. Gene crazy to go in 'movies,' too!"

"Naturally!"

"No, any way. Dumbbell on subject, like getting married, too. Prevent both. Must have close chum."

"Er—have you a photograph of your—"

"How old did you say your—"

"Nineteen. Full of wild ideas. California good place for Gene. If watched. You do that, Grimshaw. Here's check thousand dollars. Retainer, understand? Send young operative, your best."

"My very best in this case, Mr. Twohey. Thanks. Now the Los Angeles address of—"

"Gene? Lives Delta Kappa Tau house. Mrs. Something or other in charge. Name—er, Mrs. Breason, that's it. Supposed to watch over 'em."

"I have everything down here, Mr. Twohey. Now—"

"Send operative today; understand? New student. Got it all down? No going in the 'movies,' no getting married, no—"

"Don't worry. I'll remember everything. I'll send you confidential daily—"

"Reports? Don't want 'em. Just watch Gene. That's all. No news, good news. Wire me if the kid's—"

"About to throw over the traces? I'll have the operative do that direct to you, Mr. Twohey."

"Going to, Grimshaw. Good-day. Send bill. Keep photograph. Give it to operative. Going to rain, huh? By."

Out in Los Angeles apparently everything went all right with the youngest of William W. Twohey's brood. Weekly bills came from the Grimshaw office but no reports.

Six weeks passed. Then a terse telegram, direct to old William W. It read:

Your son, Gene, has had marriage fever past three weeks. Impossible to stop or cure him. Marriage only solution to save him from films. So married him myself this morning. Wiring Grimshaw office same report. Am resigning position. We are leaving tonight for Honolulu. Our honeymoon. All well. Same to you and Mr. Grimshaw.

MARY RUTH, Operative.

A few minutes later—very few—the millionaire burst into the inner office of the detective manager. Both were snorting mad; both had wires in their hand, both began exploding at once.

"What blackmail scheme is—" snorted old William W.

"What has happened to my daughter, Mary Ruth, out there in—" barked Allan F.

"Mary Ruth—your daughter," gasped the oil magnate. "Why, I told you to send—"

"You old scoundrel, you told me to send a fit chum for your daughter, Jean. You gave me her baby photograph. Here it is!"

"Good Lord! Bartholomew's little girl!" William W. spluttered, recognizing the lost photograph. "But I—I couldn't have given you this—"

"Well, you did!" the detective cut him short. "Blackmail! Why—why you sold distinctly Jean, and you told me that was the only photo you had of her; liar! I'm going to Los Angeles on the next train."

"Grimshaw," he inquired. "That's one on me! Let's make that double and go on to Honolulu, old man. On me! Mary Ruth, hum! Say, we need a detective in the family. We'll all bear watching! One thing, Grimshaw, if there's a daughter, name's going to be Jean, understand?"

South American Trade Campaign

A Part of Secretary Hoover's Drive For Outlet of U. S. Goods—Serious Inroads Being Made In Our Natural Market.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Washington, May 2.—With a gigantic world trade war in full swing, following stabilization of the pound sterling, the United States, Great Britain and Germany are concentrating their commercial attention on South America in a supreme effort to capture these valuable markets.

America's newest offensive was begun today with a statement from the department of commence, warning exporters that they are losing millions of dollars annually through ineffective distribution and selling methods.

European competitors, keeping sight of more efficient means of getting their products into South America, are making serious inroads in what is considered a natural market for American goods, according to the department.

Quick action on the part of commercial and industrial interests to build up the southern markets, which in 1924 took $500,000,000 in American products, was urged by R. F. O'Toole, chief of the Latin-American division.

The South American campaign is part of a general program of Secretary of Commerce Hoover to find an outlet for the surplus manufactured goods and raw products of the United States.

Last year this country produced agricultural, manufactured, mineral and forest commodities valued at approximately $48,000,000,000, of which about 8½ per cent was exported.

Hoover believes that establishment of greater markets for American goods will tend to iron out seasonal and periodic depressions, and will place the business and industry of the country on a more even keel.

Extension of commodity manufacturing beyond the limits of seasonal demand also is expected to be accomplished by expansion of foreign requirements for American products.

Officials regard foreign competition as more severe in South America than in any other part of the world. It was pointed out that this region possesses highly important expansive possibilities and heavy purchasing power for absorption of larger quantities of American merchandise.

Fine Collection of Books on Far East

On a high hill on the very edge of Tokyo stands the world's finest library on the Far East in languages other than Chinese, Japanese and their kindred tongues. The library building is fireproof, soundless, severe and scientifically arranged, but sadly out of sympathy with the unique and marvelous collection of volumes made by Dr George Morrison over a period of many years and supplemented now by the purchases of Baron Iwasaki, who offered the institution to students of all climes.

Baron Iwasaki not only placed the library at the disposal of those interested in the Far East, building and equipping a home for it at a cost of 1,500,000 yen, or $750,000, but he endowed the institution with 2,000,000 yen, the interest on which is to maintain the library, assist in the promotion of research work on oriental subjects, and purchase additions from time to time. The whole is placed under the control of a board of trustees.

Doctor Morrison's collection includes works on China, Tibet, Mongolia, Manchuria, Kashgaria, Siberia, Korea, Formosa, Japan and the neighbors of China, and a comprehensive set of works on central Asia and the rivalry between Great Britain and Russia on the western frontiers of China. There are books on the subject in more than twenty languages.

Petrified Wood Has Beauty Akin to Gems

The petrified national forest, one of the 29 national monuments established by Presidential proclamation, is the only region of hundreds of places in the Southwest in which silicified wood occurs in such abundance as to deserve the name of a petrified forest. It is located in northern Arizona south of the town of Adamana on the Santa Fe railroad and was designated as a national monument in 1906.

There are three principal groups or forests in which trees or blocks of the petrified wood lie scattered about in profusion. Many tree trunks exceed 100 feet in length and cross sections reveal the fact that these trees, which are cedars, did not grow there, but probably beside an inland sea, and upon falling became waterlogged on the bottom at this point. During decomposition the cell structure of the wood was entirely replaced by silica derived from sandstone in the surrounding land.

The state of mineralization in which much of the wood exists almost places it with gems or precious stones. Not only are chalcedony, opals and agates found, but many trees approach the condition of jasper and onyx.

A Cleveland (Ohio) student now knows his landlady has a sweet tooth. Andes Branch D&N Abandoned

Cost Quarter of a Million to Build Twenty Years Ago—Branch Never Brought Good Revenue—Rails To Be Torn Up.

An order permitting the Delaware & Northern Railroad Company to abandon the Andes branch, which extends from Andes Junction to the village of Andes, was issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington on Wednesday, says the Catskill Mountain News.

Several efforts have been made to give up the operation of this part of the road but have not been successful until Federal Judge Cooper at Albany gave an order in the winter that the operation of the branch might be stopped after February 1 for three months and that application should be made to the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington for a final decree either to operate or to abandon. This is the decree mentioned above.

The Andes branch is 8½ miles long. It was constructed at the same time as the main line in 1906 at a cost of over $250,000. The grade is a heavy one and the upkeep of the property has been very expensive. One cost of operation was the filling of the Muir trestle. This ran upward of $30,000. The road has always claimed that it was operated at a loss and was one of the factors that kept the road in financial troubles.

There will be some financial return in the abandoned property. The depot at Andes and adjoining 10-15 acres of land and the 8½ mile right of way three rods wide through the best farms of the Tremperskill ought to bring fair prices. In addition there will be the rails, switches and the like.

This leaves the village of Andes without a railroad, but with excellent state roads in each direction.

The door is kept hasped to keep out intruders, but when the Austin deer feels the need of food or shelter it will nose up the hasp, enter, pull on the electric light and proceed contentedly to munch the supply of Aroostook potatoes which are kept in a box, says the Boston Globe.

Remarkable, If True

"'Great men's origins are always interesting, but it isn't generally known that several Royal academicians actually began life as artists.'"

Fort That Has Figured in American History

Fort Michillimackinac, invariably clipped to "Mackinac," resulted from Father Marquette's mission established in 1673 on Point St. Ignace, and La Salle's visit there two years later. The first defense, as found by La Salle, was a palisade, and the garrison consisted of Indians. La Salle did much to strengthen this post. La Motte Cadillac also was there and further added to the strength of the fort. Then Detroit swung into the lead as a fur and trading center, and in 1712 the settlement was moved to the south side of the strait, where Mackinaw City stands. There the second Fort Mackinac was built. It was this fort Charlevoix describes in Vol. II of "A Journal of a Voyage to North America." This fort was surrendered to the English when France lost out. It was captured by Pontiac's Chippewas and Ottawas on King George's birthday (June 4), 1763. It was without a garrison for four years. At the beginning of the Revolution it was strengthened and heavily garrisoned. The English commander, fearing capture, moved his forces to the island of Mackinac in November, 1779, where the third fort of that name was built. It was occupied by the British until July, 1730, but did not figure in the war. It was turned over to the United States in 1796. A description of the last Fort Mackinac, as it was in 1880, is found in Uriah Tracy's report on it to Samuel Dexter, secretary of war. It had a garrison of 57 men at the outbreak of the War of 1812. It was captured by an overwhelming British force of soldiers and Indians, and its capture brought many tribes to the British standard. The blockhouse on the hill back of the old fort was built by the British during the war. It was surrendered to the United States in July, 1818.

Got Out of It Neatly

Sir Henry Robertson was an official of the local government board for Ireland, and he had been entertained by an old priest who, finding his larder low, had prepared a large pancake an inch thick, swimming in grease, for his guest's supper. Sir Henry, with respect for his digestion, slipped it into a pocket containing two leather bags, and then mailed one of them at the village post office. Upon finding a convenient ditch in which to deposit the pancake, he looked in the bag and found it full of papers. He had mailed the pancake to the office of the government board. Presently he received an angry letter from headquarters, inquiring for what purpose the contents of the pouch were forwarded. "I did not wish to give away my carelessness," says Sir Henry, "so I headed my reply, 'Failure of the potato crop—sample of food consumed by small farmers in the west.'"

LATEST NEWS OF NEW YORK STATE FARM ORGANIZATIONS

Prepared for This Paper by the New York State Farm Bureau Federation, Ithaca, N. Y.

Fourteen Years of Farm Bureaus

L. A. Muckle, president of the New York State County Agents' association, was a radio speaker from station WGY, Schenectady, on April 27. Mr. Muckle's talk was on the farm bureau in New York state. He reviewed the history of the farm bureau organization beginning fourteen years ago in Broome county and outlined from personal experience in farm bureau work the county agent's job.

"The typical farm bureau manager today," said Mr. Muckle, "is a man of some thirty years of age, farm-reared, a graduate of a recognized college of agriculture and with previous experience either as assistant manager or in some line of work that particularly fits him for the hard duties of his job. The work of the county agent is exacting. It not only calls for a thorough training in many branches to meet the problems of a diversified agriculture, it calls for an undying faith in the man on the soil and a deep consciousness of responsibility to society. It requires a strong man physically, one who is willing to give his nights as well as his days to the work. He must not only meet the farmer on the farm for his individual problem, he must help in the selection and encouragement of a good local committee in every community. He must study with them the more pressing farm problems and devise practical ways to meet them through a well planned program. Finally he must blend these community programs into a well balanced county program of work that will, year by year, add to the well being and the constructive progress of the county through a better agriculture. There is hardly a rural hall in New York state where sometime a Farm Bureau manager has not met with the farmers of the community and worked far into the night with them on their problems. Scarcely a large constructive piece of work relating to agriculture in New York state has been accomplished in the past ten years in which the county farm bureaus have not been ready and tireless helpers. Today the farm bureaus of New York are engaged in co-operation with the state and federal departments of animal husbandry in stamping out tuberculosis from our dairy herds. New York bids fair to be the first state to supply its people with milk from tested herds.

"This spring before the buds on New York's famous fruit trees burst, the Farm Bureau will have men carefully watching the orchards to send out spray warnings. The spray service carried on by the farm bureaus in co-operation with the state college and the experiment station prevents losses of hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. Last year unsprayed apple trees in Western New York showed practically 100 per cent injury from plant and insect disease while trees sprayed under the direction of the farm bureau spray service had good percentage of clean fruit.

"Within the past few years in co-operation with the conservation commission the farm bureaus began educational work in reforesting of non-agricultural land. Last year farmers, under the direction of farm bureaus, set out 600,000 trees in demonstration plots alone. In future years, posterity will honor the foresightedness of these men. A problem that must soon be solved is that of more efficient marketing of farm products. We all pay daily tribute to the inefficiencies of our present method.

"Farm bureaus in New York state have succeeded and will live because they are built on the solid foundation of service, service not only to the thousands of farmers who are active members, but service to the whole agricultural industry and service through a better agriculture to the state and to the nation."

League Farmers Get Record March Price for Milk

League dairymen everywhere are expressing satisfaction over the announcement of a net pool price of $2.36 per 100 lbs for March milk testing 3 per cent butterfat. This is the base price at the base zone—201-210 miles from New York city. The prices received by individual farmers will vary up or down according to the zone in which they are located.

The announcement of so good a price came as an agreeable surprise in many sections. It stated that this is the highest March price in the history of the pooling association. In fact, with the exception of the three years, 1918, 1919 and 1920, when all prices, including milk, were abnormally high on account of war conditions, this is the highest price ever received for their March milk."

President Slocum in his monthly letter to the members points out that it again has been possible to omit the deduction for certificates of indebtedness. He also calls attention to the fact that the deduction for expenses is 1c per 100 lbs. less than in February and that although the average weighted price for all March milk in all classes was 15c lower than for all classes of February milk, nevertheless the pool price only shows a drop of 4c.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, May 2.—Stock prices moved forward briskly in every department of the market in the short session today. The best gains were made by the leading industrial and motor stocks. In industrials, American Can pushed up nearly 4 points in active trading and sold up to 180.

A moderate spurt in oil stocks resulted from professional buying, based on the firm situation in the gasoline market. Buyers of Mid-continent crude oil were reported offering premiums for light crude and gasoline distributors were in the field for large supplies of that product. Rumors of an advance in prices of retail gasoline were also heard. Standard Oil of New Jersey and Pan-American were the leaders in the movement which later embraced most of the active independent oils. The movement did not reach large proportions and gains were mostly fractional.

The foreign exchanges were steady and the grain markets reacted fractionally from the high price levels attained in Friday's spectacular closing rally.

New forward movements were inaugurated in Baldwin Locomotive, Cast Iron Pipe, Maxwell Motors and Mack Trucks. North American was practically the only utility stock to continue Friday's spurt in utility shares. Shipping stocks, motor accessories and coppers stocks were steady and American Sugar advanced fractionally in the face of a new decline in refined sugar prices to 5½ cents a pound.

Some interest was displayed in stocks of the railroad companies which might figure in mergers with the more prominent systems. New York, Ontario and Western sold up 2⅛ points to 25 on a large turn over. Western Maryland, Wheeling and Lake Erie and other low priced shares sold in good volume.

Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh jumped six points and reached a new high at 92¼, as a further response to the leasing of the road to the Delaware and Hudson. On a small volume of sales this stock made a sensational gain of 42 points since Wednesday of this week. Chicago, Northwestern rallied two points more to 53, completing a recovery of six points from its recent low.

A hunger strike, similar to that from which her brother, Terence died, was threatened by Miss Mary MacSwiney in Chicago, when Federal officials led her to believe she might be arrested for coming into the country without a passport. She was on a patriotic mission for the cause.

Facts For Farmers

How much is your own time worth?

Every hour spent in carrying water is wasted! Pumping water is not a business-farmer's chore. Today, machines do the chores. And that's what this Kingstonian Farm Water System is—a finely designed machine which you can buy at a reasonable price and which can be counted on to supply running water when and where you need it, with little or no attention from you.

Inquest In McLaren Death

there was some bank. He passed next morning and saw no obstruction at the turn.

It looked as though the McLaren car had hit something before it hit the pole to make it leave the roadway. He noticed that about 18 inches off the road there was a large stone. McLaren said he hit it. He said it was about 125 feet back of the pole at the curve. A car could negotiate the curve at 30 miles an hour and a car ought not to have done the damage the Stewart did if it were going at 30 miles an hour. The car must have been going fast. He saw McLaren drive several times. Three or four days prior he saw him drive and he was driving at a high rate of speed for a truck.

He was there when Dr. Trainor arrived. He made no examination of the road for tracks.

Telephone for Ambulance.

Emory Hasbrouck, who resides about a half mile from the scene of the accident said he was with his father-in-law at the house and heard the crash. He took the car from the barn and they drove down to the scene. He said he had left the scene to telephone to the Leo V. Grogan ambulance service at Kingston. He saw the wrecked truck and Mrs. McLaren lying alongside the truck. When he returned from telephoning there were a number of people around and the doctor had arrived. The truck was to the left of the road as it was coming from New Paltz. He described the scene and location as others had.

In his opinion he thought that if a car's steering gear was in good order a car ought not to have gone the distance the Stewart truck did, if the driver had been going at a reasonable rate of speed. He said he had driven trucks in the army but had not driven much lately. He had driven many makes of trucks.

Mr. Hasbrouck said he had observed McLaren drive his truck and he usually travelled at a good clip. After the accident he did not examine the tracks of the car.

Undertaker's Testimony.

Van Pine, New Paltz undertaker, said he had not known Mrs. McLaren during her life time. He resided about a mile from the scene of the accident. Leston DuBois had called him and asked him to bring a body to New Paltz. He arrived about 9:30 or 10.00 o'clock and took the body to New Paltz. He did not examine the truck closely but the front running gear was loose from the chassis and back under the rear wheels. Later he went back and looked over the tracks of the car. The tracks showed the car had left the roadway some 15 or 20 feet back of the pole, had run up and hit the pole and then continued on past the pole along the bank for a distance of 65 or 75 feet. The car evidently ran on past the pole for that distance without front wheels. The ground which was slightly up hill was scraped by some part of the truck. He saw no obstruction at the turn and the car must have been travelling at a good clip.

No Obstruction on Road.

Thomas H. Elliott, garageman at New Paltz, called said he was familiar with Stewart trucks. He had gone to the scene of the accident around 9:30 or 10 o'clock with his wrecker, after someone told him there had been a wreck. He described the condition of the truck as previous witnesses had. He took the car to his garage at the request of Mr. McLaren. He saw Mrs. McLaren lying on the ground when he arrived.

Next day he examined the steering gear and found it in good condition except where it had been trorn loose from the wheels. Next he saw Mr. McLaren about two weeks later when he called at the garage to take away the car.

Two days after the accident when the pictures were taken he examined the ground. He showed the photographer where the truck had been. He noticed the split pole but had not examined the ground closely for tracks.

When the photographs were taken he stood in the road where the pool of blood had been under Mrs. McLaren's head.

He said the car had gone to the left of the road and hit the pole and then ran up the bank and along for some distance and then down on the road. There was no obstruction on the road at the turn. The car had left the road and traveled about 15 feet before it hit the pole and then continued on for about 75 feet after splitting the pole. In his opinion the car must have been driven at a pretty good rate of speed, more than a moderate rate of speed. He saw no cause for the accident except that McLaren was driving faster than he ought to have been. The car was still in gear when he attempted to tow it away.

Declines To Take Stand.

At this point Mr. Merritt asked Mr. McLaren if he desired to make any statement. He informed him that if he desired to he might take the stand and tell his story but before he did so he would have to sign a waiver of immunity and that anything which he said might be used against him in case there was an action brougth in the case against him. After consulting with the coroner who informed Mr. McLaren that there would be no prejudice one way or the other he declined to take the stand at this time.

Was Asked To Go Slow.

Mrs. Aloise Webber who, resides at Maple Hill with whom Mrs. McLaren resided for ten months prior to her marriage to Mr. McLaren, was the next witness. She said Mrs. McLaren had been like a daughter to her. She knew Mr. McLaren and he and his wife had visited at her place several times.

A few days after the funeral, Mr. McLaren came to her house and had a talk with her. She thought he wanted to tell someone about his trouble and knowing that she was such a good friend of his deceased wife he had sought her to relieve his mind and make things easier. He said at that time he was sorry it had happened. He said that the car had hit a pole and Mrs. McLaren had been thrown out. He did not think she would be so seriously injured until he picked her up. Until that time he had hoped that her injuries would be less serious, perhaps a broken arm or leg or something like that.

Mrs. Webber told the Coroner that that day Mr. McLaren had told her that his wife had told him that the day they went on the fatal ride she had a feeling that something would happen. She had told her husband that she felt as though something might happen and she asked him to drive slow. She asked him to slow down just before the accident happened and he said he had slowed down "and the accident happened anyway."

Mrs. McLaren was a frequent visitor at her house and appeared to be happy. Mrs. Webber said she had seen Mr. McLaren drive past her place both slow and fast.

Charles Post of New Paltz went to the scene with Mr. Elliott. He did not know the McLarens. He saw the car and the body on the road. His description was about the same as the others in regard to the scene of the accident. He assisted in placing the wrecked front end in the truck and in taking it back to New Paltz. He saw no reason for the accident except an excessive rate of speed.

Same Description.

William Campion, who resides at New Paltz, but who is not a native, was called. He went with the wrecker to the scene. He said he was not very familiar with the place. He did not known the McLarens and had not noticed the tracks of the truck. He described the scene as others had. The pole which the truck hit he said was about 10 feet from the beaten track. He never went back to the scene until Friday when he passed.

Testimony of Sheriff.

Deputy Sheriff Decker of New Paltz was the last witness called. He had been notified of the accident about 9:30 and went up when Mrs. Jewett called him on the phone. He, his wife and Seth Townsend went up in Decker's Ford car. On arrival there he saw the wrecked truck and Mr. McLaren and his wife's body. Mr. McLaren was moaning and crying. Dr. Trainor came afterwards. He saw blood spots where her head lay. He thought it was after Mrs. McLaren's body had been taken away that Mr. Laren went around and examined the truck. He examined the steering gear in a casual way, not closely, and remarked to Mr. Decker that he saw nothing wrong with the steering gear and that something must have given away. Decker did not examine the car. Mr. McLaren had partly stopped crying at that time.

Decker examined the roadway. After the turn the car had crossed the road and ran up the bank, hit the pole splitting it in two. One-half lay over in the field. The car passed on and down to the roadway where it came to rest.

Some friends came from Kingston and got McLaren and took him to New Paltz to Van Pine's. He did not go with the body of his wife.

The following day Mr. Decker said he examined the road. He saw no obstruction at the turn. From where the tracks left the roadway to the pole was about 35 or 40 feet. The car hit the pole and then ran on 71 or 72 feet, a total distance of about 100 or 125 feet from the time it left the roadway until it came to a stop.

After examining the tracks he thought the car was traveling at a fast rate of speed, over 30 miles per hour.

Mr. McLaren did not tell him how the accident happened. The only thing McLaren said was "Why did this have to happen when I was driving at a slow rate of speed." He said that he had been talking something about buying a new truck at the time he said about driving slow. Mr. Decker was not sure just what McLaren has said but it was something about having talked with his wife about a new truck and they were planning on getting a new truck soon.

Mr. Decker said he saw McLaren drive before the accident and he saw him drive at a high rate of speed. He usually drove too fast for the safety of the public. He saw him drive 50 miles an hour. He had had complaints of Mr. McLaren's driving from several people who has asked Mr. Decker to caution McLaren about his driving. Mr. Decker said he never had spoked to McLaren about it although he had had opportunity. He never exerted himself to see him and tell him or warn him.

Adjournment Taken.

After Mr. Decker's testimony Mr. Merritt asked Coroner Suiter to adjourn the matter for a couple of weeks as there were a couple of witnesses, whom he would like to examine and that if at that time Mr. McLaren desired to make a statement he would be ready to receive it. In the meantime Mr. McLaren might consult his attorney if he desired.

An adjournment was taken until 1 o'clock, Friday, May 15, at the court house.
